HEADS TO CONFER

PRESIDENTS OF MISSOURI STATE INSTITUTIONS WILL MEET.

TO DISCUSS FUND DEFICIT

Pres. Richardson and W. A. Blagg to St. Louis to Aid in Making Financial Plans.

President Ira Richardson and W. A. Blagg, president of the board of regents of the State Normal school, will go to St. Louis Monday to attend a conference of the heads of the Missouri state institutions, to be held Tuesday, and which was called by Governor-Elect Gardner.

The deficit in the salary fund will probably reach $25,000 for this Normal.

A deficit of about $700,000 in the state school fund will face the incoming administration January 1. At every session of the general assembly there are deficits, but the debts for the biennial period ending December 31 will be larger than ever before.

At the conference members of the board of curators of the state university, Rolla School of Mines and representatives of the state normal schools will confer with Gardner.

The incoming administration will not attempt, it is said, to reduce the appropriations for the educational institutions. An attempt will be made to ascertain exactly what it will cost to conduct the public, normal and other schools during the next two years.

The junketing committee appointed by Gov. Major will visit the State Normal school here some time this month. The committee is to meet at Jefferson City Monday to organize and arrange their itinerary. This committee will make a report to the legislature as to the needs of the state institutions.

TO DISCUSS DECALOGUE

Rev. Gilbert S. Cox Sees Need of Finding Modern Application in Commandments.

The series of sermons to be given by the Rev. Gilbert S. Cox at the First Methodist church on "The Ten Commandments and Their Modern Application" will no doubt be of interest to the church goers of Maryville.

Mr. Cox, in referring to his reasons for giving these sermons, said:

"This ancient document was the foundation of Israel as a nation and of the individual morality of the most ethical of all the ancient peoples of the earth. We have not outlived it. A great lesson in ethics is being forced upon our attention by the world war. The kingdom of God is a kingdom of righteousness. Good will and well meaning do not meet the requirements of the twentieth century conscience.

"We demand that the content as well as the intent of an action be just and right. The manufacturer who fails to install safety appliances and his employee is killed may have meant well but he is a murderer. The physician who operates, and by ignorance loses his patient may have a good will, but ever our laws hold him guilty. Our consciences need education. These ten sayings are the foundations of all moral law. If we are to please God we must "do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly." With this purpose in view this series of sermons is preached."

LIGHT RATES LESS

REDUCTION PER KILOWAT HOUR EFFECTIVE JAN. 1.

FORMER OPEN RATE 15C

Now 15c Will Be Charged for the First 5 Hours—Longer Time Cheaper.

The Maryville Electric Light and Power company announces today a reduction in the light rates, effective January 1. While all raw material entering into the generation of electricity has increased greatly in price, the company feels able to make the reduction because of their increased business, which reduces their overhead expenses. The old rate was 15c a kilowat hour, open rate unless a contract for light was given.

The new rates are as follows:

For first 5 K. W. hours or less consumed in any month, per K. W. hour, 15 cents.

For next 20 K. W. hours or less, consumed in any month, per K. W. hour, 12 cents.

For all over 25 K. W. hours consumed in any month, per K. W. hour, 6 cents.

As these rates are lower than the existing contracts, the contracts will be cancelled December 31, 1916.

All bills on which 8 K. W. hours or more are consumed in any month, 10 per cent discount if paid within 10 days after bill is rendered.

These rates applied for all their lines. In addition to Maryville, they are Pickering, Clearmont, Burlington Junction, Clyde and Ravenwood.

Services of the Maryville Electric Light and Power company to Burlington Junction was turned on at 3:08 o'clock yesterday afternoon and a twenty-four hour service will be given. The Clearmont line will be ready by the end of next week and service will then be given to that town.

FIRST TRADE DAY

CROWDS STREAM IN TO ATTEND TRADE FESTIVAL.

FARE REFUND DRAWS

Commercial Club Secretary Kept Busy Dispensing Cash—Record Attendance First Day.

They came, they saw, they bought. This is the story of the first day of trade week, all in a nut shell. At noon today the Maryville merchants were predicting a big sale for the first day of the trade festival.

The first man to appear at the Maryville Commercial club office was Gus King of Conception, who patronized Murphy's clothing store and then made his way to the Commercial club office to get his fare.

Perhaps the earliest man in town for the "trade week doin's" was James Cline of Pickering, who arrived in Maryville at 9 o'clock and bought a bill of goods at Corwin-Murrin's.

"From the looks of things—the way the trade is beginning early in the week and early in the day," said an

TABLE ORDINANCE

PROPOSED PARKING PLAN LAID OVER UNTIL LATER.

HAVE A TRAFFIC LAW

Measure May Merely Be Added to Present Ordinance—Police Report Given.

The proposed parking ordinance will become merely an addition to a traffic ordinance previously adopted, if M. E. Ford, acting city attorney, finds that the traffic ordinance will satisfy in all cases except for the parking of cars. This was the decision reached last night at the regular meeting of the city council.

The parking ordinance, which provides for the placing of automobiles in the center of the street, was ready to be voted on when it was discovered that a traffic ordinance covering all of the provisions of the parking ordinance had previously been voted on. The two ordinances are now to be compared, and if they are enough alike, the parking clause will be added to the

SPLENDID EXHIBIT

H. S. STUDENTS SHOW PROGRESS IN FINE ARTS.

Miss Carpenter and Mr. Schultz in Charge of Manual Training and Domestic Science Exhibit.

The exhibit of the manual training and domestic science departments of the Maryville high school, in charge of Miss Dora Carpenter and L. J. Schultz, instructors, is attracting a great deal of attention.

In the domestic science department is shown work in crocheting, tatting and sewing, the work of girls 14 years and over. These models are all done by hand, no machine work being allowed. Another group of articles shows the excellence of the work in more practical garments, machine stitching being used.

In the sewing department, materials are studied, together with the suitability of trimmings and cost. On each garment is marked the name of the owner, the number of hours spent in making the garment, and the cost of the materials.

In the manual training exhibit excellent workmanship was shown by the boys. Among the pieces of particular note was a corner seat, magazine stand, a sewing table, a dressing table and a music cabinet. These pieces of furniture do not look like the work of amateurs, so careful were the boys in matching the boards and getting correct measurements.

The manual training and domestic science departments in the high school offer elective courses, due credit being given according to the amount of work done. Miss Carpenter has forty girls in her sewing classes, and the display on exhibition today represents the three months' work of the pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brink entertained Mrs. Mary Miller and her daughter, Miss Cora Miller, of Graham, and Robert Miller of Otis, Colo., at dinner today.

Five and Ten Cents

What Sympathy Effected

A Labor Day Story

By BARBARA PHIPPS

"Papa," said Dora Quintard, "what is this I hear about a strike of the Quintard company's employees?"

"I think a strike will be declared."

"What is the trouble between you and the men?"

"They want an advance of 10 per cent."

Now, Miss Quintard, daughter of the president of the Quintard Manufacturing company, instead of spending her time in social requirements gave it to the employees of the concern of which her father owned a controlling interest. She visited the sick, helped the women put their children in proper apparel, supplied needful provisions and otherwise ministered to their wants. While the father was absorbed in paying dividends the daughter was sympathizing with the workers.

"What dividends are you paying, papa?" asked Dora.

"Twelve per cent."

"What is a fair interest on money?"

"That depends. The government can borrow on as low as 2 per cent interest. A good railroad 5 per cent stock is usually worth par. Manufacturing stocks should pay from 6 per cent as a minimum indefinitely upward."

"What is the market price of Quintard stock?"

"One hundred and seventy."

"Supposing you should add 10 per cent to the men's wages, what dividends could you pay?"

"From 7 to 9 per cent, I think."

"And what would be the market value of the stock while you were paying, say 8 per cent?"

"That would vary in different manufacturing concerns. In our case, where we have a steady demand for our goods, a fair surplus and much money invested in the plant, the stock should sell at about $130."

"You say that a railroad stock selling at par and paying 5 per cent is a fair investment. Isn't a manufacturing stock selling at $130 and paying 8 per cent a better one?"

"That's a question for the investor. I should consider them about equally good. I, knowing all about the affairs of the Quintard company, would prefer to hold its stock at $130 on an 8 per cent basis to a good railroad stock at par paying 5 per cent."

"Don't you think, papa, that you could grant this increase of wages and still give the capital invested in the company a fair dividend?"

"What a smart little puss!" said the father, embracing his daughter. "Why don't you set up for a walking delegate? You would easily prove to the operatives that they are being treated unfairly, that capital is getting the lion's share of the profit accruing from their labor. Having proved to them that they are entitled to 10 per cent advance, you could then prove that they should try for another 10, and so on, till the bubble burst."

"What do you mean by the bubble bursting?"

"Suppose wages were to be increased till only a fair dividend is earned; nothing is laid up for supplies; the machinery wears out or new mechanical devices must be introduced to meet a reduced cost of manufacture. Or suppose a war breaks out and we are shut off from our foreign markets. Where are we? Stranded. Where are the operatives? Thrown out of employment. And you know what that means. It is starvation."

"Yes, papa, but you are paying 12 per cent dividends. How can you pay that and add to your surplus?"

"All investments are liable to turn out a loss of the capital involved. Manufacturing stocks are considered especially uncertain. It is difficult to get capital for them or to hold it when you have got it. To hold our capital in the Quintard company we have been paying out all our net earnings in dividends. My plan has been to do this till confidence is acquired and something more than our present dividends earned. Then I will reduce the dividends and place the reduction and the additional amount earned to surplus account. When I have provided a surplus sufficient to keep the stockholders from bolting and my men employed in case of a year of loss instead of profit I intend to pay higher wages—that is, if I see no more snags ahead."

"Why don't you explain that position to the employees as you have explained it to me?"

"Such a course would be impracticable for many reasons."

That was the end of the dialogue, but it was not the end of Miss Quintard's thoughts on the subject. She formed a plan to give to the employees what the president could not do officially—an inkling of the situation. She went to the women whom she had helped—those she could best trust—and gave them to understand that she knew it to be the best interest of the operatives that they should let well enough alone for the present, trusting to the president to get the business of the Quintard company into such condition that he could meet their demands without injury to them or the stockholders. These women talked to their husbands, and their husbands talked to the most influential operatives who in the Quintard works were the steadiest.

And so it was that trouble was averted by a girl who knew nothing about business, simply because she had gained a hold upon those in need by supplying their necessities and by her sympathy.

FIRST TRADE DAY

enterprising merchant today, "I believe that this is going to be a big week for the customers as well as for the merchants. The fine weather which makes travel easy and pleasant, the many inducements offered the trader at the stores, and above all, the fare-refund, is making the country people sit up and take notice

"The ball is rolling," said E. M. Claypool, Commercial club secretary. "Everything looks favorable for a big week. Not one customer who came in here for the cash refund who has not expressed himself pleased with the plan. This is especially good on the first day, because the satisfied customer will go home and spread the news of his treatment to his neighbors. Monday the crowd will be double."

Mr. Claypool was interrupted by the jingle of the telephone bell.

"Yes," he answered. "If the family buys enough merchandise to warrant it we will pay the fares of the whole family."

Just think! Fares of the whole family refunded if the purchases are large enough! This is truly "some bargain week."

The fare refund is something new in Maryville, but it is bringing the trade. Persons may come from Kansas or Iowa, just as they please. They will get the fare refund, providing their purchases reach a reasonable amount.

Watch the advertisements in The Democrat-Forum. Every merchant who has lent his backing to the trade festival is offering an exclusive line of goods and a number of splendid bargains. Read the advertisements carefully and profit by the advantages of trade week.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The New Electric Lighting Rates

Effective January 1st, 1917. The following rates per kilowatt hour will be charged for electricity for lighting on all our lines:

For first 5 K. W. hours or less consumed in any month per K. W. hour 15c

For next 20 K. W. hours or less, consumed in any month, per K. W. hour 12c

For all over 25 K. W. hours, consumed in any month, per K. W. hour 6c

As these rates are lower than existing contracts, same will be pro rated and cancelled December 31st, 1916.

All bills on which 8 K. W. hours or more are consumed in any month, 10 per cent discount if paid within 10 days after bill is rendered.

All new material entering into the generation of electricity has increased greatly in price and we are only able to make the above reduction because of our increased business, which reduces our overhead expenses. HOT LUNCH AT SCHOOL

Innovation in Mount Tabor Community Brings Hearty Response From Mothers.

An innovation which attests the up-to-date methods of the Mount Tabor community, north of Elmo has recently been perfected in the Mount Tabor school. A noonday luncheon is served to the pupils, thus doing away with the old time method of carrying lunch to school or of returning home during the noon hour.

Under the direction of Miss Nellie McKnight, the teacher, a Mothers' club has been organized in the district. The mothers pay so much per capita for their children, and then donate food from time to time. The teacher, assisted by the older girls, prepares each noon a wholesome luncheon, the menu for which is not only selected scientifically but cooked according to the approved principles of home economics.

The Mount Tabor community has one of the strictly modern schools of Nodaway county, and Miss McKnight has been extremely successful in handling the work of the grades.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Foland and daughter, Miss Vada, went to Bolckow yesterday to attend the funeral services of Mr. Foland's brother, Jesse Brady. Others from Maryville that went were Mr. and Mrs. George McMurry and Lon Hoyt of Quitman.

It is of great value when used promptly for a cold, usually checking it and overcoming it in a few days.

Ample evidence has proved that it is even of more value in overcoming chronic catarrh, dispelling the inflammatory conditions, enabling the diseased membranes to perform their natural functions, and toning up the entire system.

The experience of thousands is a safe guide to what it may be expected to do for you.

High School Notes

By WILLIAM VAN CLEVE

High School students are enjoying four days of rest after a strenuous six weeks. School was dismissed Wednesday for the rest of the week. When we go back Monday we enter into the home stretch of the grind. Cards for the last six weeks will be given out Monday.

Tuesday and Wednesday were Senior days. The beginning Seniors gave programs on both days and they were even better than they were expected to be. The program on Tuesday was opened with a piano solo by Mary Woolridge. The next number was given by a mixed quartet composed of Maud Helpley, Leeta Wray, Emmett Bartram, and Harry Holmes. This quartet gave two numbers. The final part of the Tuesday program was given by Clarence Cook. His first selection was a "rube" reading and it brought down the house. The applause continued until he reappeared with complete change of costume, this time as a "bally-bloomin'-Hinglishman-dontcherknow."

Wednesday's program was opened with a piano duet by Edith Kidder and Mildred Wamsley. This was followed by a selection by a trio composed of Lillian Carpenter, Wave Hulet, and Alta Doyle. In response to the applause they also gave a very clever encore. The closing number was given by Eugene Martin. He, as a representative of the beginning Senior class, payed his respects to the advanced Senior class, and in token of the deep regard in which he held the said class, presented some little gift to each member of the class with a fitting speech for each. The gifts were accepted with the utmost of dignity and grace by the advanced Seniors.

***

As there were no school notes last week, the program given by the Conservatory did not receive the notice which it deserved. Mr. Fred Lewis Hakel and Vladimir Jisa, accompanied by Miss Porter, gave an excellent program of ensemble music. The four selections given were typical of the German, ancient Italian, Norwegian, and French.

The program was as follows:

1. "Suite" by Moscowski (German)
2. "Souvenir" by Bodojra (ancient Italian).
3. "Serenade" by Sinding (Norwegian).
4. "Barcarolle" from Tales of Hoffman, by Offenbach (French).

***

Taking advantage of the Thanksgiving holidays, several of the non-resident pupils also went to their homes for a more or less extended visit. The teachers of the High School appreciate the four days' vacation quite as well as the students.

Mr. Burger is spending his time (and probably his money) in Kansas City.

Misses Keeler and Wells went to St. Joseph Thursday night to attend the concert given by John McCormack at the Auditorium. Miss Wells will return today but Miss Keeler is expecting to go on to Kansas City.

***

A representative of Washington University of St. Louis will address the students of the High School on Monday. He has several views of the University which will be shown if a lantern can be secured.

***

Football at the High School has proved itself to be not only self-supporting but also a paying investment. Receipts were sufficient to pay all the expenses and left an $85 surplus which was used to pay for the new suits. These suits will last for several years and in the future the surplus from the football season may be used to finance the sports which are not self-supporting.

***

There will be no athletic activities at all next week. Every one is expected to rest up for basket ball which will begin the week following.

***

On Thursday of next week, the students will be entertained by the High School orchestra. The orchestra will be assisted by certain celebrities who appear only on condition that their names must be kept secret. Mr. Magee, however, went so far as to stake his reputation that the program will be a success.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Pennington and daughter, Clara, of Columbia and Mr. and Mrs. Truman Glaze of Fortesque, Mo., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow of Pickering.

Mrs. J. S. Lawson and Mrs. Tom Lawson of Pickering were taken to the Sisters hospital in St. Joseph, where they will undergo operations for appendicitis.

HAVE SERVED TIME

THE FOURTH MISSOURI REGIMENT WANTS TO COME HOME.

THEY ARE OLDEST TROOP

Soldiers Have Sent Petitions to Four Generals Explaining the Situation.

The Fourth Missouri Infantry, which includes the members from Maryville in the regimental band, wants to come home. The men have served on the border, according to a statement issued by the enlisted men from their headquarters at Laredo, longer than any other national guard regiment. The other Missouri towns represented in the regiment are Columbia, Hannibal, St. Joseph, Edina, Tarkio, Carutherville, Kirksville, Trenton, Carrollton, Chillicothe, Weston and Mound City.

The following petition and communication, which was sent to each of the four generals, was received by the Daily Missourian late yesterday afternoon:

Reports have come to the attention of the enlisted men of the Fourth Regiment, now on its fifty week of patrol duty along the border, of intimation of the mustering out of one of the two Missouri regiments now in federal service, the other to remain on the border. We have also received intimations of a combined effort on the part of the officers of the said regiment to influence the proper authorities against our removal, supposedly giving, for one reason, that the enlisted men of the regiment are satisfied and do not wish to return home.

If this report be correct, we wish to inform you of the true attitude of the enlisted men of said regiment, which is as follows:

First—That we believe that we have performed our just share of border duty, being the oldest remaining regiment in the Laredo district, and, to our belief, on the border.

Second—That the personnel of said regiment will show many more than the average regiment who in civil life occupy positions above the average in importance, and who, together with all others, are suffering probable loss of positions as a result of our longer stay here.

Third—That the enlisted men of this regiment are ready and anxious to be returned to their homes and duties of civil life as soon as possible, and beg that you be not misinformed by other reports from other sources.

The letter to the Missourian adds: "The above communication, signed by practically all the enlisted men of the Fourth Missouri infantry, was sent to the commanding general of the Laredo district, the general commanding the Missouri troops, the commanding general of the southern department (General Funston) and to the general commanding militia affairs at Washington, D. C.

It should be understood that the petition originated and was circulated with absolutely no intent toward mutiny or sedition, but that the real truth might be known. It should also be understood that the reason it is sent to your paper over the signature of one who is a member of the Fourth regiment is that thereby a great danger of court martial is eliminated. We wish this to receive publication, but we do not wish any one person to assume responsibility for the petition and so stand in the danger of unjust punishment. Such things have been known to have happened before."

An attempt was made by Mayor J. M. Batterton and the Columbia Commercial club several weeks ago to secure the release of the Fourth regiment, but their petition was not granted.

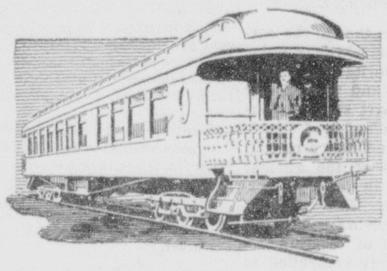
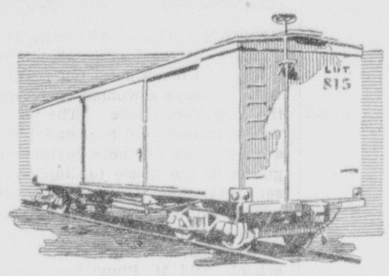
Automobiles



Which Do You Prefer?



Pullman or Freight?

No one would think of riding in a freight car if he could enjoy the comfort of a big, comfortable easy riding Pullman parlor car.

So with automobiles. Most of the popular priced cars ride like freight cars. This is due to the old fashioned type of spring.

Many manufacturers still continue to use them.

The Overland does not. The 75 B Overland has the latest type of cantilever shock absorbing springs. As a result it is one of the easiest riding cars in the world.

PATENT MEDICINES

SUCH PREPARATIONS DEPEND ON NARCOTICS FOR EFFECT

DANGEROUS FOR CHILDREN

The dangers of secret preparations, patent medicines, have been pointed out many times. The great majority of these preparations depend on alcohol or some form of narcotic for their effect.

Narcotics are things which dull our senses, make us sleepy, lessen our perception and usually slow the heart. Many of them have the power of putting us so soundly asleep that we can not wake again. Almost without exception they establish a craving for their continued use in increasing doses, which we call a drug habit. Without exception, such habits are evil.

There is one class of patients on whom the effects of narcotics are peculiarly marked and peculiarly dangerous, namely, children. Children are peculiarly susceptible to the effects of opium.

People are misled sometimes by the use of names with which they are not familiar, such as heroin, and codeine. These are all derivatives of opium, and weight for weight are much stronger and more potent in their effects than opium. Every mother and every person who has the care of children should know these names and know what they stand for. The patent medicine manufacturers start with children almost as soon as they are born. There are dozens of so-called remedies for teething children under the name of soothing or teething syrups. One of the best known of these contains a dangerous amount of morphine, and there are few practicioners who have not seen disastrous results following the use of this nostrum, which lures its victims by the name of a woman who is supposed to have invented it and put it out. Naturally no one would suspect that a kindly, motherly woman would use anything which would be injurious to a baby. There is no question that these syrups quiet children, but in doing so they interfere greatly with nutrition. The sleep is not the healthy sleep which a child should enjoy. It is "doping." It interferes with the natural secretions of the body and markedly with nutrition.

There are also cough syrups recommended especially for children and medicines for croup. Cases of opium poisoning following the use of these cough syrups are frequent. Here opium again in one form or another is the active ingredient. Croup may be a simple disease brought on by indigestion or exposure to cold. The ordinary forms of croup are readily relieved by simple remedies, but croup may be, and oftentimes is, diphtheria of the larynx, the most dangerous form of diphtheria. This is "true croup," as contrasted with the simple form which is known as "spasmodic croup." Narcotics in such a case mask the symptoms and mask the danger, but cannot possibly do anything but harm.

If the parents decide that a narcotic must be given the child let them know exactly the dose and the preparation which they are using, but it is best never to give an opiate to a child except on the advice of a competent physician.

HEALTH INSURANCE

MEDICAL CARE NEEDED

Statistics Show That Fear of Expense Keeps Poor From Consulting Physicians—This Must Be Stopped.

Compulsory health insurance is an economical means of providing adequately for the sick wage earner, and will prove a mighty force for the inauguration of a comprehensive campaign for health conservation.

Strong forces are at work in America to bring about a compulsory health insurance for working people. Investigation has shown that wage earners have a death rate which is twice that of professional men; that there is a high rate of sickness, and a great need among wage earners for better medical care. The fear of expense keeps many wage earners from consulting a physician, while many more consult physicians too late and leave his care before they are entirely cured. In Rochester, N. Y., a health survey showed that 39 per cent of those sick in the city were not under the care of a physician. In Boston, Mass., it is estimated that one-fourth of the people are unable to pay the fees of private physicians. Compulsory health insurance would improve these conditions.

It has been shown that the average loss of time for each wage earner is nine days a year, which means an aggregate wage loss of approximately $500,000,000. Health insurance would provide a systematic method of meeting the loss incident to sickness. Workers would consult physicians promptly, and stay under their care as long as was necessary, since the loss of wages would be provided against and the needs of the dependent family taken care of.

The cost of health insurance is to be divided between the employees, the employer and the state. The systems carried out in the older countries of Europe have been thoroughly studied by a commission in this country, and a well defined plan has been drafted. The public is interested in the plan in a practical way because it is a most efficient method of preventing the spread of disease. From the humanitarian standpoint, it will relieve much suffering and distress. Whatever betters the condition of the working people of the community betters the community and state as a whole.—Dr. M. P. Ravenel.

PRAISES FOR MUSICIANS.

The Clearmont News Complimented Highly Entertainment Given by Maryville Artists.

The following is from this week's Clearmont News about the concert given at that town last Tuesday evening by Frederick Lewis Hakel, Mr. Jisa, H. J. Becker, the Rev. Gilbert S. Cox and Miss Alice Porter:

Just as St. Joseph had her billion dollar breakfast the other morning, so Clearmont had her seventeen thousand dollar school entertainment Tuesday night.

As we sat in the Methodist church Tuesday night and enjoyed the program which had been arranged for by the school, perhaps none were aware of what wonderful talent and most wonderful instruments you were really privileged to hear.

Prof. Frederick Lewis Hakel, head of the violin department in the Maryville Conservatory of Music, studied abroad for six years under the great masters, Professor Sevick in the Royal Master school of violin playing in Vienna, Austria, and under the celebrated master Cesar Thomson, in the Royal Conservatory of Music in Brussels, Belgium.

Professor Hakel is the owner of two very valuable violins. Perhaps no one realized Tuesday night the wonderful music rendered by Mr. Hakel was from a violin that cost ten thousand dollars, while the one that his cousin, Mr. Valdemir Jisa, used cost Professor Hakel seven thousand dollars, which amount he has since refused for it. Both of these violins are genuine Cremonas, and Professor Hakel and Mr. Jisa are certainly just as genuine as the instruments, both as men as well as violinists. Yet these men, with all their talent and skill, are located within twenty miles of Clearmont, Professor Hakel being head instructor in the Maryville Conservatory of Music. Perhaps never again will the people of Clearmont, for the small sum of 25 cents, have an opportunity to enjoy music from two violins which could not be bought for $17,000. You were enabled to do so this time only by the kindness of these men in coming here and giving us their services for their expenses only, that they might aid our school.

The rest of the program was on a parallel with the violinist. H. J. Becker and Rev. Gilbert S. Cox are among the best singers in northwest Missouri, and their work here was exceptionally well pleasing. A great deal of approval was expressed of Professor Harry A. Miller's readings. He delighted the audience especially with his selection about "The Minister and His Gospel Mill." As for Miss Porter, from the Maryville Conservatory of Music, she just couldn't have been beaten, for she was raised in Kentucky, where good musicians are as abundant as blue grass. Her reputation as a pianist and vocalist is kell nnown and is growing rapidly among the lovers of good music.

Au Revoir, Simplicity! Greetings, Fluffy-Anna! Hence Jewelry is Once Again in Favor

By Mme. Qui Vive

An idea leaps into the mind of the great Fashionist.

"I shall design a period gown," says he, "such as might have been worn by the Pompadour, or the gentle Marie Antoinette, or some lovely Watteau lady."

He seeks old paintings, old prints, old tapestries, old memories, perhaps, and the trick is done. It is, alas, like the throwing of a pebble into the sea, for the ripples start, encircling the universe of dress, reaching on and on and on.

For, when the wonderful costume is designed, there is a world of women asking a world of questions. What chapeau did the great lady wear with that particular kind of a robe? What was the coiffure? Did the gloves reveal the elbow? What about the jewels? Such a fuss as that Fashionist starts! But isn't it jolly? There's so much in the world that is dull that the frivolities of fashion lighten the gloom.

Enter Fluff—Goodby Simplicity.

This year the high priestesses, to whom come inspirations for sartorial glory, have declared in favor of fluff as against the everlasting simplicity—which is fine for youth but hopelessly cruel to middle age, and the ages that come after. Ruffles, fluffles, ruchettes, flounces, draperies, poufs—we walk in a cloud of them. It is, therefore, a season of exquisite details, of charming ornaments and decorations.

Naturally, there is then a renewed interest in jewelry. Mother no longer pins a rose on daughter; instead, she buys her a lavalliere of greenery-yallery gold, set with baroque pearls, or a hand-carved coral cameo ring, or a platinum pendant with hand-wrought mounting and a sapphire to match daughter's bright eyes.

Cost Not Measure of Value.

But, mind you, heed this! The intrinsic value of jewels means less and less; the decorative value means more and more. A fine stone in an ugly setting is less to be prized than a stunning thing bearing no gems at all—only the soul of the artist. It is the spirit of the metal-worker rather than the material that counts; in this respect the metal-worker is brother of the artist who paints the masterpiece. He gives of his best.

Some of the newest settings in bracelets, pendants, bar pins and brooches possess the delicacy of fine lace. They are marvels of the craft. They are distinctive and vastly more attractive than jewelry that is bolder and showier.

Of hand-wrought gold and Bohemian garnets are ear-drops, lavallier and fichu clasp.

Link bracelets are among the novelties; they are made of links of gold or silver. A single setting may appear. Among the more elaborate offerings are bracelets with a diamond set in every link, but these are only for those who possess much of the precious loot of life, as they are very expensive.

Good Taste Still a Factor.

A most encouraging sign is found in the fact that the best pieces are not bizarre or ornate. As in every other detail of dress of the present season, the directing factor is good taste—the foundation and substance, body and soul of the art of dress.

Small brooches, extremely attractive, and within the financial possibilities of almost every woman, are in the form of small flower filled baskets, branches or trailing vines, the color tones achieved by the skillful placing of enamel or imitation gems. To hold the collar of crepe Georgette or to clasp the fichu of embroidered net, they are beautiful and appropriate ornaments.

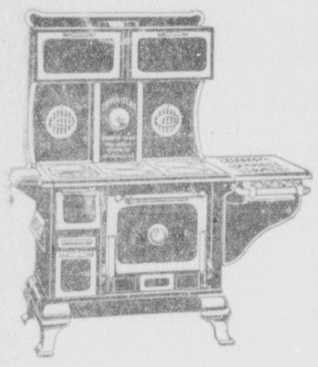
COPPER-CLAD WEEK

Next Week All Week



A Handsome Range

Where real beauty is the test, the Copper-Clad is always chosen and especially if the choice is made by the woman who is to use the range. Men may be attracted by fussy ornaments that catch and hold dirt, but the ladies know how hard such ranges are to keep clean. They take the Copper-Clad every time.

A solid ebony body framed in silver nickel — a picture — a dream in elegance and design — a thing of beauty.

The Copper-Clad back flue is made of malleable iron, all in one piece, and will not crack, break nor rust out. It adds 10 years to the life of a range.

Notice this patented shift on the Copper-Clad Reservoir. When the water in the Reservoir gets too hot you twist the lever and shift from the heat.

A pouch Feed that takes big lumps of fuel and a slope that feeds the fire without poking and punching.

Free Aluminum Ware

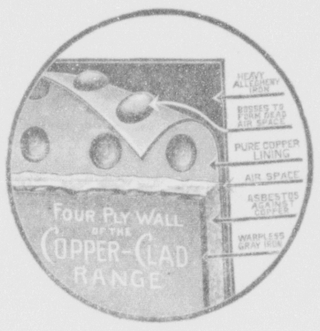
Each buyer of a Copper-Clad Range next week will receive free of any cost a set of heavy aluminum ware — with the compliments of the manufacturers.

Come and see the Copper-Clad Range and see this ware. Notice that it is not a lot of thin, light pieces of no particular service, but that every piece is usable and is the pure aluminum that lasts years longer than the usual kind.

If you can use a Copper-Clad Range in the next year — come next week and secure this free ware at the manufacturers' expense. Money saved is money made.

The Four Walled Copper-Lined Malleable Range

No Other Range is Clad with Real Copper That Never Rusts



HEAVY ALLEGHENY IRON
ASBESTOS TO KEEP HEAT AND AIR SPACE
PURE COPPER LINING
AIR SPACE
ASBESTOS AGAINST OUTSIDE
WARPLESS GRAY IRON
FOUR PLY WALL OF THE COPPER-CLAD RANGE

COUNT THE WALLS—1, 2, 3, 4.

One of Pure Copper.

First is the outer wall of Alleghany iron, second the pure copper wall, third the thick asbestos wall, fourth the warpless gray iron wall that clamps the asbestos to place and never burns out.

Why Not One Thick Wall?

Because such walls waste too much heat by radiation. Asbestos does not radiate and waste the heat, but it does "sweat" as it cools off.

For long years no one understood why malleable ranges rusted out from the inside. No one thought of asbestos sweating—but it does, and to separate the outer wall (body of Range) from the sweaty asbestos was necessary.

Separate with something that will never rust. "Copper is the thing," said the originator of the Copper-Clad Range. So between the asbestos and outer wall he put a sheet of pure copper — and not one Copper-Clad Range has ever rusted out.

This Copper Wall saves the price of a new range every 10 years, and while it costs much more to make, it is well worth the money. The Copper-Clad Range is conceded the best range made anywhere at any price.

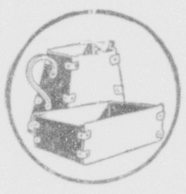
A Cooking Machine

A machine that does the same thing the same way every time—machine-like. So with the Copper-Clad Range. It can be depended upon to do perfect work every time. It cooks as good as it looks — and because of the Copper lining at rust points, outlasts two or three ordinary ranges.

The above is the cabinet style that sets up well off the floor on a special base. At the left is the leg style.

The ash pan sets inside the ash pit, which is closed by a double walled door. No spilling of ashes. Take out pan any time without affecting your fire.

Study this Warming Closet door. No bolts, catches nor hinges on the outside. Smooth as a dish. Two wall or double thermos doors.



Think of cleaning dishes that were bolted together like these. Yet, you clean ranges full of bolt heads, catches, hooks, hinges and latches. Copper-Clad Ranges are free of all these dirt catchers.

Tight oven doors means a quick oven under control. The weighted oven door of the Copper-Clad saves much time as it opens and closes with a touch.

A Thanksgiving Surprise

"THE most un-American Thanksgiving I ever spent was in a French hotel ten years ago," says a woman contributor to the New York Globe. "The proprietor was a friendly old soul and liberal to a fault. He not only invited all the guests in the house to dinner, but he sent invitations to ex-guests as well.

"One family who had spent the previous winter with him had gone home to America, leaving their daughter at school. Old M. Blanc sent an invitation to the school, and the demoiselle Americaine and a governess came to Paris and spent the day at the hotel.

"I had a country house near Paris then, but M. Blanc did not forget me either. So I went into Paris, taking my two girls with me. The hotel was a small one, but well known, and it was a rendezvous for many interesting Americans. The tables were decked with holly and mistletoe.

"M. Blanc in his ardor had mixed up our American fetes. He moved about, smiling mysteriously and whispering to questioners that he had a surprise in store for us—a dessert which would make us all feel as if we were not in Paris at all, but back in that faroff 'chez vous' (at home) whence we had come.

"There was much laughing and merriment, and we drank M. Blanc's health in his best wine as a mark of appreciation. His waiters soon appeared tottering beneath the weight of a huge plum pudding wreathed in holly and bearing an American and a French flag.

"Of course we heaped him with praise. He beamed and beamed, poured brandy over his chef d'oeuvre and lighted it, served it himself and said to each person as they thanked him: 'Did I not tell you you would feel chez vous? It is good and hot. Your national dish! Will you have some more fire?'"

Thanksgiving and "Thanksliving."

To sing a song of thanks to God is inspiring; to live a life of service with your brother is improving the world. Were we less idealists we should view with fine satisfaction the sight of men and women differing in their religious beliefs, yet joining together in thanking God. What we plead for is not a yearly thanksgiving to God, but a daily thanksliving with God. Our aim is not content to see men sit together once a year, banishing prejudice and hatred, but to behold them at work together, every day in the year absolutely forgetting religious differences, ignoring theological doctrines and judging a man by his conduct, not prejudging him by his creed or race. The celebration of this day is highly to be commended. It stands as the highest expression of present day religious observance, yet its true worth is only achieved when we carry into the entire year what the day symbolizes to us all. Thanksgiving is praiseworthy, but thanksliving is divine.—Rev. Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, Pittsburgh.

Cause For Gratitude.

If ever we are tempted to say that, though others have much to be thankful for, our lives are hard and our paths are thorny let us stop a minute and see by what standard we are measuring our blessings. If we look at a cripple plodding along with crutches we cannot help being thankful that we have feet which serve us well and that we can walk and run without so much as considering the effort. When the rain beats on the roof at night we may be thankful for the house that shelters us. When the doctor calls next door to see an invalid who is tossing with fever we may be thankful that we are well. If there are flowers on the doorbell across the street we may be thankful that there are no vacant chairs in our home.—Margaret E. Sangster.

Thanksgiving In "Ye Olde Colonial Dayes"

HISTORY tells us that in the early days in some of the colonies there was a puritanical hatred of Christmas, and when a day of thanks was set apart such "superstitious meats" as baron of beef, boar's head, plum pudding and mince pie, all redolent of memories of the ancient feast, were eschewed in favor of turkey and pumpkin pie. The colonists were so pleased to celebrate Thanksgiving in this fashion of feasting, especially after they were compelled to listen to a long sermon, that they began to appoint frequent Thanksgiving days—sometimes for reason of victory over the Indians, then for the arrival of a supply ship or a bountiful harvest, says the Washington Star.

Usually the day set occurred in August, especially if it was in thanks for the harvest. Finally, in 1684, Massachusetts declared it to be an annual and legal holiday, and all the New England colonies followed her example. In those days Thanksgiving in its religious character was rather curious. On one side was the minister whose duty seemed to be to predict the most direful things, and his sermons consisted of warning to the people of the awful things to come, while, on the other hand, the people were told to rejoice and give thanks on that day, even though the pit yawned on the day before and the day to come. The whole thing was a paradox, for the wives were compelled to stay home and prepare the dinner, yet they were soundly berated by the ministers for being absent.

Many of the sermons aimed at the preference for the flesh pots over spiritual things, but after the discourse the preacher frequently went to dine with one of his parishioners and enjoyed the dinner prepared by the mistress of the house, whose absence he had commented on in the pulpit an hour before. The sermons seldom touched on fasting, but they included the political topics of the day, whether local, state or national. On one occasion at a Thanksgiving service a Federalist pastor in Connecticut prayed, "And, O Lord, endow President Jefferson with a goodly portion of thy grace, for thou, O Lord, knowest that he needs it!"

The festal trait of the day at that time seems to have been entirely in the hands of the women of the family, who for days before worked quietly to prepare a feast, and the deep religious gloom which pervaded the household during those years was in a measure lightened by the sunlight of the well cooked Thanksgiving dinner. A well fattened turkey at one end of the table and chicken pie at the other were the principal articles on the menu of the well to do man's Thanksgiving feast. The middle class had the chicken pie and a small turkey, while the poor feasted on the pie alone. But every table, rich or poor, had a fowl of some kind and usually a pitcher of cider to wash it down. A pie made of pigeons, too, was a favorite Thanksgiving dish. Strangers were made welcome, and not even a tramp was turned away. Unfortunately, this hospitality seems to have been based on a superstitious fear of bad luck rather than a genuine case of charity.

Woman Who "Made" Thanksgiving.

It was a woman, Mrs. Sarah J. Hale, editress of Godey's Lady's Book and well known as a writer, who championed the cause of a national Thanksgiving. Year after year she patiently fought for a national observance of Thanksgiving day, publishing endless articles on the subject. In various ways she caused an agitation of the subject that finally resulted in 1859 in the governors of most of the states of the Union annually issuing proclamations for Thanksgiving. At her suggestion President Abraham Lincoln issued a proclamation for a national Thanksgiving for Aug. 6, 1863, about a month after the battle of Gettysburg.
